

CYDUCT DIAGNOSTICS TO PARTICIPATE AT THE 10TH ANNUAL YALE INNOVATION SUMMIT

WESTPORT, CT / ACCESSWIRE / May 16, 2024 / CYduct Diagnostics, Inc. (OTCPK: CYDX) (“CYduct”, “CYductDX”, or the "Company"), an innovator in precision breast health enabled by non-invasive intraductal platforms, today announced it is pleased to present at the 2024 Yale Innovation Summit, being held from May 29-30 in New Haven, CT. The 10th annual event will feature industry-leading speakers from the arts, biotech, climate, health, and technology sectors.

The Yale Innovation Summit brings together the innovation and entrepreneurship community for two days of impactful conversations, purposeful networking, and Yale pitch competition across five tracks of programming. Celebrating its 10th year, the event has become one of the region’s biggest and most impactful innovation events, drawing investors, founders, and industry partners to Yale’s campus from around the world to create new connections and opportunities.

CYductDX, will present study data illustrating how proteomic technology can enhance breast cancer detection and improve early detection and patient care at this year’s Yale Innovation Summit.

“Across the spectrum of recent healthcare advancements, molecular innovations have proven to be more accurate, less invasive and less expensive than current standards of care,” said Dom Gatto, CEO, CYductDX. “We are reshaping the breast healthcare landscape by bringing precision, non-invasive solutions and better options to women. Intraductal techniques have been shown to improve diagnostic accuracy, lower the rate of unnecessary surgeries and improve the ability of clinicians to identify and treat breast cancer early.”

About the Yale Innovation Summit:
